Be My Valentine?

A Timely Dating Game

Ladies and gentlemen, join us in our efforts to eliminate the notion of spending Valentine's Day alone.

Be one of our bachelors or bachelorettes and partake in a showdown-style dating game. Once cupid shoots his arrow, you and your lucky someone will enjoy a date night on the house.

Lots of door prizes, games, and kisses (the candy, of course) to be enjoyed.

Couples Night hosted by UPEI Unicef Club begins directly after, so let the good times roll into the night and all the way to the 14th!

We invite you to dress in semi-formal attire.

4-5pm: Mixing + Mingling
5-6pm: Dating Game (The Main Event)
6-7pm: The First Date for our champion couples

Not everyone will meet their match. Only 5 lucky couples will be selected by night's end. So bring your A game!

The rules of the game will be announced on location. See you lovers on Friday night.

There are still spots available for the dating game. DM @thecadreupei to enter

Wiener Kings

New Podcast Episode

They say waiting makes the pie taste even sweeter. This makes perfect sense, because after an extended hiatus... the boys are back for Episode 4. This time we're with the Sovereigns of Sausages themselves, Ryan Thompson and Shion Phelan of Wiener Wagon fame and fortune.

In this episode, we sit down with the Wiener Kings to discuss sex toys, unorthodox marketing strategies, secret tunnels, and how handsome Shion Phelan really is in person.

Surviving Poets Society

Her Safe Space
by Dana Chatterjee

Her life is a story black and white but he fills it up with colours bright a little taint of red here and a splash of blue above

he made her a pretty canvas for the world to behold and see covered up the dark blotches her past and scars beneath pushed past her mask of fake smiles and the screaming voices in her mind then replaced it with serenity and whispered

I'm never leaving.

Peacemaker: Must Watch of the Week

BY RAYYAN RAMJAN, EDITOR

Kachow! Suit up and put on your masks and let's fight our way into the mind of an anti-hero, where intelligence and impulsiveness collide, and anything can happen.

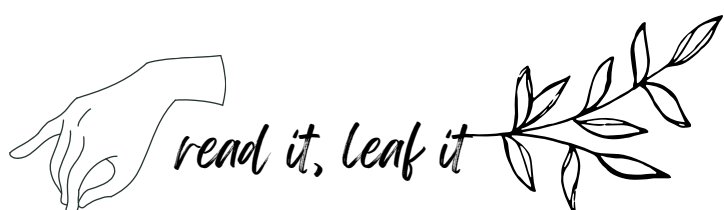

Hats off to John Cena, he is certainly one of the better wrestlers turned actor. He made Peacemaker, or Chris, feel real, which when you break down the character, is something bonkers.

The show, however, is on a different level, a masterpiece certainly. It is rare to find shows based on superhero characters that are 10 out of 10. A few shout-outs go to Daredevil and The Punisher if you have not watched either I would highly recommend them irrespective of whether you like superheroes.

Peacemaker is not a one-man show; the side characters are well crafted, and each tells a little bit of their own story. If you've read some of my reviews previously, you know that I love overly dumb characters. Here this would be Vigilante, a self-proclaimed nickname but he is no "good guy." He is a serial killer who is obsessed with Chris being his best friend. Then we have agents Harcourt, Economos and Murk, who babysit them to act on orders throughout the show. This whole whacky dynamic simply makes the show hilarious throughout. The way all characters' trauma and insecurities are portrayed is marvelous, showing how the journey of life is one of constant improvement no matter your past. Peacemaker is not just for laughs, it is a rollercoaster of emotions, from trauma to betrayal to pity to glory.

Overall, Peacemaker is a must-watch for hardcore fans of DC comics or if you want good humor and a good time.

Next time, we shall explore Wakanda through the latest movie from Marvel, Black Panther: Wakanda Forever.
